Block One

What is it going to be like? Where am I going to live? I hope the dorm isn't too loud. I hope the dorm isn't too lame. I hope I like my roommate, I hope my roommate doesn't have purple hair and listen to Georgian Chants. I hope she brushes her teeth. I hope she isn't a nymphomaniac and bring back a different guy to our room every night and I have to sleep in the hall. I hope I don't walk in on them. Or I hope she isn't a pyromaniac and burn down my room and then I have to live in the hallway or in Jayís Motel and then I have to walk twelve blocks to school everyday, even in the snow. I hope that I like my class. What if I get a fifty-page paper and it's due two days later. I hear they do that on the block plan. I'll have to spend my life in the library, which would be better than Jayís Motel, but everyone would forget about me and I would have no friends. God I hope I don't have to eat by self. Everyone will have someone to eat with but me. What if the food sucks? I will starve and I will have no friends to care if I live or die. I will shrivel up and die in my motel room with my crazy roommate and her man of the hour. I think I'll stay home.

Organic Chemistry! I have to take organic Chemistry. I hear you have to spend your life in the Chemistry Lab and they don't feed you. I hear that you have to spend twenty hours a day in class and five hours on homework. There isn't enough time in a day for organic chemistry. I am going to fail and then I will have to drop out of school and live with my parents. I hope my roommate didn't change over the summer. I hope that she still brushes her teeth. What if she developed some weird disorder over the summer? What if she snores and I can't sleep. I'll be a walking zombie and fail all of my classes. I should have gotten a single.

A major! I have to pick a major. What do I want to be? What if I am a Chemistry major and then I change my mind and they won't let me change my major and I have to be a Chemist for the rest of my life. I hate Chemistry. Maybe I'll be an Art major, but what if I can't draw. I had two years to figure out my major. What am I going to do? Maybe I'll transfer, maybe I'll drop out. If I don't pick a major my parents will hate me, my friends will hate me and I will have to work at the 7-11 on Cache Le Poudre for the rest of my life because I won't have enough money to fly home. I should have gone abroad.

My roommates threw a house party again last night. No sleep was to be had. I wish I had lived in the dorms. I hope that I can graduate in the spring. What if they don't let me graduate? What if I have to spend another year here? What if they make me start all over again and I have to live in Loomis? I'll have to live with all of the smelly freshmen. What if I graduate and I can't find a job? I will have to keep my job at 7-11 and my parents will disown me, my friends will forget me, and I'll never fall in love. What if?

As the student government the Colorado college Campus Association (CCCA) is concerned with allsapectsof College life and serices all members of the campus community. CCCA Charters and recognizes student organizations appoints students to factualty and trustee committees; represents the student body in dialogues with the College administration; funds special projects, chartered organizations and student publications (i.e. the Nugget. you rock CCCA!)

Every Colorado College student is a member of CCCA. The Executive Council is the CCCA governing body. It is composed of 5 elected student positions: President(Ben Mitchell and Maggie Pavlik), Executive Vice President, Student Concerns Vice President, Constitutuional Vice President, and Budget Vice President. In addition to these Executive members, 13 district representatives are elected from various residental areas on and off-campus as well as Class Vice-Presidents acting as representatives from each graduating class. The student body elects its representatives annually. One College dministrator and one faculty member as well as various ex-offico members are also invited to participate in Council decisions.

The CCCA Council meets three times every block and meetings are open to the entire campus. The first and third meetings are dedicated to campus life and issues; the second meeting is held strictly for funding issues.

WOMEN IN SCIENCE ALLIANCE MEETING

Thursday @ 12:15
Upstairs Worner- Bring your lunch

VERY IMPORTANT!!!

During our last meeting we began planning a turn-key workshop for kids, which would be presented by W.I.S.A. at local schools. We designed labs for biology, physics, chemistry, and geology. Since then, arrangements have been made with Steele Elementary School and they are expecting us on the 4th of March to show their 2nd graders the brilliance of science all through the work of a fully female scientist team. WISA!!! Please come and join us in making the final decisions and arrangements. Thanks, see you there.

Block Five

Distinguished students, parents, faculty, honorees, and administrators of the Colorado College: My name is Maggie Pavlik and I am Ben Mitchell. We serve as the elected Co-Presidents of the Colorado College Campus Association, the student government at CC.

Today we address this assembly in Shove Chapel concerning the very life and mission of our mutual association. Let us pose a question: On this 125th anniversary of the College, to what end are we embarked together as a community of teachers and learners? To answer with a simple statement, we are here to undertake the responsibility of human freedom- to learn our nature as human beings by engaging in a self-conscious, reflective, intelligent, and lifelong activity of human understanding.

The Colorado College is an institution dedicated to the pursuit of the liberal arts and sciences. This form of education focuses not to acquire habits or to train ourselves in a particular function; rather it attempts to continue the sacred mission delivered by Delphic oracle over 2,500 years ago: know thyself. This odyssey into the seas of human self-understanding is the core of liberal learning.

The liberal arts and sciences are founded in the Western Tradition; a tradition which strives toward the ideal of a free society. Liberal society is marked by the principles of individual liberty, personal responsibility, the rule of law, limited government, free market economy, and moral standards.

In our free society, the student of a liberal arts education must study the tradition of her ancestors to, as historian Jaroslav Pelikan remarks, "come to terms with the presence of the traditions from which we are delivered." While much is to be learned from traditional Eastern understanding and non-European cultures, we must not simply dismiss our classical inheritance.

As a liberal learners, we must understand our tradition as a source and a beginning. To use a simile from a man named Luke, "Ask, and it will be given you; search, and you will find; knock, and the door will opened for you. For everyone who asks receives, and when we knock on the door of tradition, we will see a glimmer of scintillating understanding. We must accept this tradition only to question it often and repeatedly; for in it we will find our roots, our natures, and our further understanding.

The Colorado College is a battle ground for ideas. On this moral battleground, we must all decide what we reason right and wrong. In a dialectical engagement, our disagreements reveal our truths, our questions fuel the method, and our answers are only as stable as our rationale. At the heart of our pursuit, we find ourselves asking the most fundamental questions: what does it mean to be human, how does the world function, what is beauty, and so on. In the end, these answers are the basis for our moral choices within the college campus today, and in the world tomorrow.

It is our responsibility as citizens in a free society to ascribe personal understanding to words like "virtue" or "the good life" to determine a basis for debate. We might listen to Augustine's argument in The Teacher: "if the one who hears my words sees those things himself with that clean and inner eye of the soul, he knows the things whereof I speak by contemplating them himself, and not by my words." To retain the vitality of the liberal education, we must all take on this responsibility of freedom to learn on our own in this community of knowledge.

In returning to modernity, we conclude. Director and artist Steven Spielberg is a modern day Homer. Recently, I saw the movie Saving Private Ryan, a quintessential film about the American combatants in the Normandy invasion, men who fought to preserve our free society over fascism. Normandy, similar to battles like Marathon or Saratoga, demonstrates the survival of liberal principles enduring over other systems of thought.

Colorado College is a gem of our tradition and of liberal learning. Let us not forget the sacrifices made so that we may profit from a "liberal" education. As teachers, let us learn to reexamine our safe theories of understanding- whether this given-knowledge is the understanding of Heisenberg's Principles or the true meaning found in Rousseau's Discourses. As learners, let us challenge ourselves to attempt foreign understanding. Try a class in political theory or leave your safe confidences to sing in the Colorado College Choir. Together, let us strengthen our close community which began 125 years ago. Together, let us return to the ideals of our liberal arts education. With these thoughts in mind, it is our privilege to welcome you to the challenges of this new academic year.

Dear Chris,
Wow! What a terrific young man you have turned out to be! Of course, we always thought you were great- but now you are ready to prove it to the world. We hope all your dreams for today, tomorrow, and forever come true. But always remember that - no matter what - we love you very much, are very proud of you, and will always be there for you. You da man!

God Bless,
Mom, Dad and Mollie

Adam--
May your adventurous spirit continue to enrich your life and the lives off everyone you meet. May you continue to grow as a caring human being. And just remember we're back in Beantown, hoping to get an occasional glance at your smiling face.
Much Love,

Amber,

You are

laughter, insight and love

a light in the darkness

deep and far away, yet imminently present intelligence, grace and beauty (body & soul)

absolute joy to the soul

If the world possessed more people like you, what a wonderful world it would be.

You're the rock in a pile of sand. Hmmmm. How about, you're the rock in the pile of pebbles? Anyway, you're a rockin' dancer. Like a rock. Rock on and always rock 'n roll through life. Rock around the clock and find a job. You're cute and hey, your Volvo made it through all four years. Love, Dad

You're still my agony and my ecstasy. When you talked at 7 months and could read and write at 3, I knew we had a little smarty-pants on our hands. You've been so sweet and agreeable, funny, yet shy, artistic and musical, pleasant, knowing and good. (If I only knew more about CC, huh?) Now, you're a graduate, so beautiful (excluding your wardrobe), educated, aware (while somewhat oblivious to reality), so articulate and brainy, yet so creatively sloppy and probably jobless! When can I relax? Tell your Dad to buy you a more reliable car.
Love, Mom

Yo, Big Sista, I love ya. Don't you dare let anybody treat you bad. You're the smartest sister I have. Save all your papers. hee hee. Well, the party's over and you have to do something.... like work. ha ha ha.
Love, Desiree

Dear Josh:

You are one of the music-makers, a strummer of guitars, a dreamer of dreams. You march to your own drummer; you are your own man in all things. You are intelligent and kind and gentle, a good friend and non-judgmental. You are a person of character.

For these reasons, and infinitely more, we and all who know you are certain that you will fulfill your dreams.

We couldn't be more proud of you and love you more!

JAMES A. WINQUIST

Dear Jim,

As you approach this special day of graduation from college and face a world in need of your light, we are proud of your accomplishments, both personal and academic. Most of all, we admire and value that which you have become, a person of highest character. You have fulfilled every parent's secret wish, that their child's life be an improvement on their own. We, therefore, contemplate your future with great anticipation, knowing that every venture, every turn in the road, will enrich your life and the lives of others, and bring us more pleasure in the viewing than we could ever have imagined.

Staff: Josie Bruce & James Embry
Photographers: Matt Bare, Keri Dixon, Shawna Williams & Jamie Wolf

Colophon:

The 95th Volume of the Colorado College Nugget is printed on 80# paper by Herff Jones Yearbooks in Logan , Utah. 250 copies were ordered and sold for $20. The cover is 4 color lithograph created in Photoshop 5.0. Endsheets are printed on white with hj black ink. A Garamond Bold, Blackoak, Chicago, Geneva, Helvetica, Imago Extra Bold, Marker Felt Thin, Times, Vintage Typewriter-Royal De Luxe, fonts were used through out the book. Pages were created on Herff Jones Pagemaster. Photos were taken by staff photographers or were courtesy of The Catalyst, The Cipher, Sports Programs, and the student body. The staff would like to thank its Herff Jones Representative Tom O'Brien and the Cutler Publications Board for their support and advice. In addition we would like to thank the staff of the 1979 Nugget Yearbook for their layouts, theme, text, and sheer brilliance. Majority of material used in the 1999 Nugget finds its origin in the 1979 Nugget, so thanks so much! Finally, special thanks to Jamie Wolf and the rest of Kappa for helping me when I needed them. I love you guys!

I opened the door, my door, and a cold draft rushed out of the naked walls and up from the hard floor... slapping, chilling me there in the doorway. The sound inside of the room was like the last breath within a casket - certain memories preparing to be interred there.

Upon its steeled frame the stripped bed and mattress clung together at the far end of the room. Across from it the hollow desk froze stiffly into a silhouette of anticipation. Every stereo note had evaporated and every poster- color on the wall had been torn away. And now, those glowing interior corners- all of these damn corners that were disguised to give the room a personal flow, to give it curves- these wicked corners had lashed back again and filled in every space, sterility had returned.

"The car's all packed up. Come on, we gotta get going." He had come up from behind me.

"Inna second," I said, standing there with my shoulders slumped against the doorway.

"What's the matter?"

I gazed through the window into the May daylight. The sunbeams penetrated the room, taking the shape of the window; they filtered through the floating dust particles, and settled into a neat square glow on the floor. I knelt down, parting the curtain of light, and spread my palm against the shimmering pattern.

Thank you to the 1979 Nugget
Staff for their words and brillance
